

Invitation to participate in the web page as co-author.

The author and the support team of the web page are considering a system to include other authors to participate in the page.

There are some requirements to be accepted as a co-author. The most important of these is the requirement that the page should continue to be a free / open source instrument, absolutely without any cost and without any requirement of inscription. Other requirements like the technical and theoretical level, some uniformity in the way the work is presented in the page, clarity in the exposition and inclusion of references will be considered.

How the system will work, is something open. Interested persons should contact the webmaster (basia[at]alercerojo.net) or the author (cjcruz[at]piping-tools.net ), via e-mail, to exchange opinions and to make proposals.

The acceptance of new integrants will be decided by the team of the page, based on the evaluation of the advantages of the proposed ideas.

It is assumed that the selection process may require some time to reach a final decision.

It is also seen as a final step, the partial or total delivery of the administration of the page to the interested parties.
